

ABSTRACT

A batching system is provided for ingredients that are manually added to one or more batches of a production run. The ingredients are either reconciled or unreconciled, as mandated by the Food and Drug Administration. A monitoring station is provided for verifying that all regulated ingredients to be used in the batching system are accounted for.

Mke/5444556.doc